ABOUT ME

My Mission

My mission is to ensure that every bride feels truly confident, radiant, and the most beautiful version of herself on her wedding day. I believe makeup is not about transformation, but about enhancing natural beauty in a way that reflects each bride's unique personality, style, and story. With years of professional experience and a deep passion for bridal artistry, I bring not only technical skill but also a calming, supportive presence to your morning preparations—helping set the tone for a relaxed, joyful start to your big day. I am committed to delivering a luxury experience from the very first consultation to the final touch-up, offering tailored advice, high-quality products, and a warm, professional approach. I take great pride in traveling across Scotland to be a part of love stories in every corner of the country, from remote countryside escapes to elegant city venues.

This work is more than just makeup—it's about trust, connection, and helping you step into your day feeling empowered, beautiful, and entirely yourself. That is my mission, and it's an honour I never take for granted.
